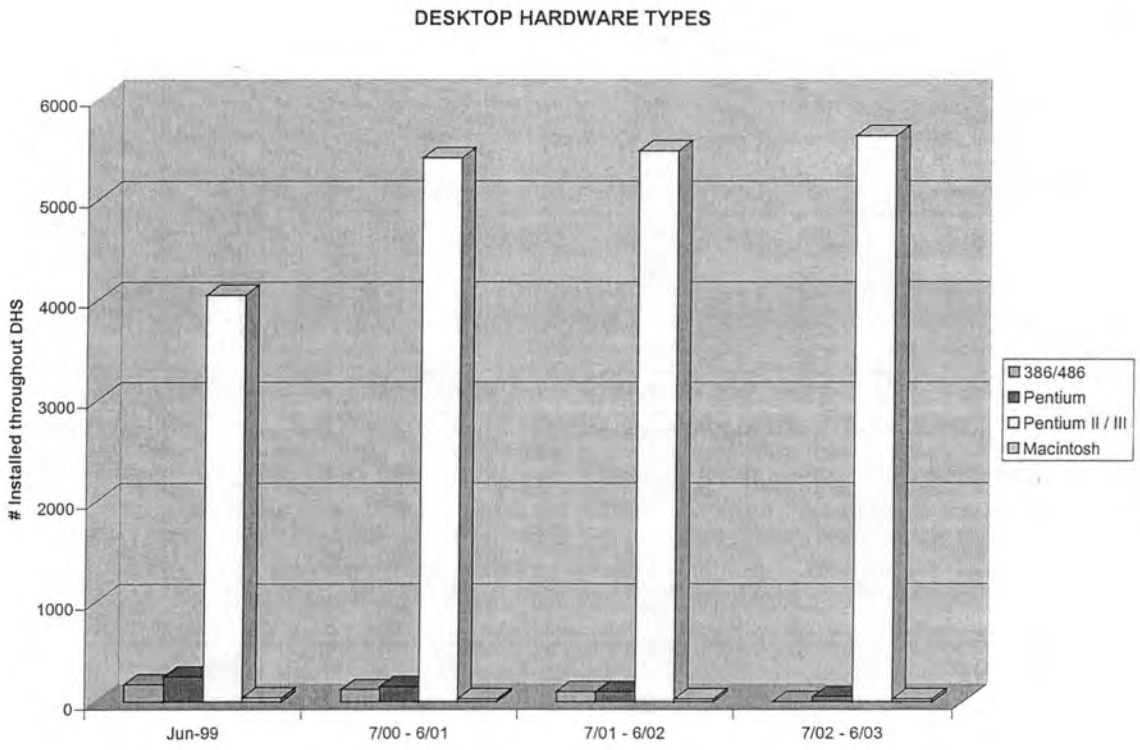
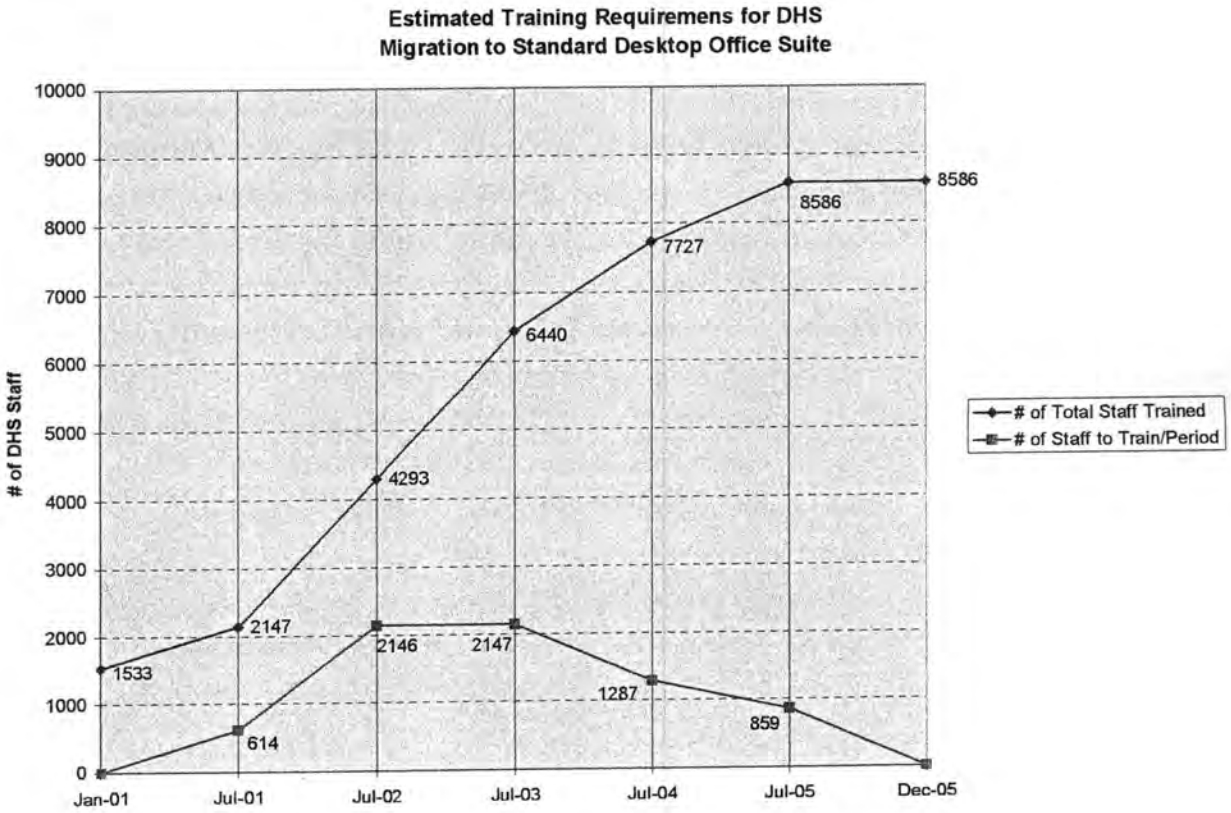
This graph shows the degree of standardization on Intel processors within DHS. Although processors are almost fully standardized, the desktops themselves are not as they are from many different manufacturers. A single manufacturer as a source for standard desktops will allow more efficiency in installation and support of the desktop.



planned migration, with training for support staff to be in place prior to beginning migration.

3. Related Business Initiatives

There are no training and education initiatives in place at this time. However, as they are developed in response to such drivers as migrating staff to standard software, the initiatives will be incorporated into this Plan.

4. Estimated Desktop Office Suite Training


The goal of the Department is to be fully migrated to the Office Suite standard of MS Office by the end of 2005. An estimated plan for training appears in the graph below. The migration somewhat follows the migration of operating systems to Windows 2000.
