This program will introduce you to two county law librarians who will present legal research tips guaranteed to save you time and aggravation.

Laura Orr, the Washington County Law Librarian, has worked, in a jail, in county and federal housing agencies, grocery stores, bookstores, a squash club, and in the following libraries: Free Library of Philadelphia (a branch and a bookmobile), University of Maryland Law School library in Baltimore, the former Bristol Polytechnic and the University of Bristol law libraries, in Bristol, England, Willamette Law School library in Salem, Oregon, and the Yale Law School library in New Haven, Connecticut. Laura received her J.D. from Temple Law School in Philadelphia, PA and her B.S in Public Administration and M.L.S. from Indiana University, Bloomington, IN. She is active in a number of professional associations and just founded (Jan. 2009) the Oregon Library Association (OLA) Legal Reference Round Table (LRRT). She teaches legal research and legal reference skills to paralegals, lawyers, librarians, and students of all ages. She has published articles on American and English legal research and served as coordinator and panelist for various lawyer and librarian meetings and conference programs. Laura can be reached at: laura_orr@co.washington.or.us.

Jennifer Dalglish, JD, MLIS, is the Law Librarian at the Alden E. Miller Law Library of Clackamas County located in Oregon City. She obtained a B.A. from The Colorado College in 1995, J.D. from The University of Montana School of Law in 1998, and M.L.I.S. from The University of Washington Information School in 2007. Jennifer got her first job in a library at the age of fourteen and can't remember going more than a week without stepping foot in one since. She is an active member of several professional law library organizations, serves on many committees and is the editor of a few newsletters. Jennifer's favorite part of being a law librarian is teaching legal research and writing to patrons, students, librarians, court and county staff and other professionals. In her "spare" time, she enjoys listening to audio books during her commute, creating vegan recipes and dancing with her 2-year-old daughter to The Wiggles. Jennifer can be reached at lawlibrary@co.clackamas.or.us.
