

JOB ANNOUNCEMENT:

The OCOM Library is in search of an On-Call Library Assistant to join our staff. This is a great position for someone who is seeking practical experience in an academic library or who is new to librarianship. The ideal candidate will have excellent communication skills, be excited to learn about academic librarianship and East Asian Medicine, and have a flexible schedule.

See full job description at <http://library.ocom.edu/jobs>.

Please send all inquiries and application materials to Candise Branum, Director of Library Services, at cbranum@ocom.edu.

ABOUT US:

The Oregon College of Oriental Medicine is a non-profit accredited institution offering master's and doctoral degrees in Acupuncture and Oriental Medicine (AOM). We are located in downtown Portland, in the historic Old Town Chinatown district. The OCOM Library works to foster a community of creative and successful scholars and practitioners by promoting information literacy, critical inquiry, the ethical application of research, and a culturally-competent appreciation of East Asian medicine and culture. We value innovation, inclusivity, self-care, and community, and strive to be the best in our field.

Learn more about us at <http://library.ocom.edu/about/about-us>.