

Rights, Responsibilities & Reactions Intellectual Freedom Newsletter – January 2025

BookRiot offers some tips on talking about censorship: How To Explain Book Bans to Those Who Want to Understand (BookRiot, 18 min). Related, a review of pro-censorship and anti-library bills (Well Sourced, 20 min). (censorship, legislation)

The Hill reports on how the new Department of Education dismissed complaints about book bans (1 min). See the responses against the shift from ALA, NCAC, GLAAD, and the Author's Guild, which note the harm, affront to civil rights, the baseless claims rooted in disinformation, and the set back against fighting censorship. (censorship)

Willamette Week reports on an organization based in Tigard that is focused on parental rights, following the lead of Moms for Liberty (3 min). (first amendment, censorship)

Meta announced a shift away from fact-checking of posts by outside partners towards relying on users to provide notes (NY Times, 10 min). The decision has greater implications, see Meta's fact-checking partners were 'Blindsided' (WIRED, 8 min), The danger of Meta's big fact-checking changes (Vox, 9 min), Meta's changes will lead to clash with EU and UK (The Guardian, 6 min) and Meta goes MAGA (Popular Information, 8 min). (disinformation)

Politico investigates how the disinformation field is in disarray and how rhetoric underpins the current political climate (12 min). Here is a short thought piece on addressing disinformation claims with positive counterclaims, including an infographic (Substack, 4 min). For a deeper dive, a recent study in Science examines the appeal of disinformation (for key points, see this press release from Northwestern (4 min)). (disinformation)

More disinformation news: As natural disasters unfold, disinformation is being spread as a way to explain what is happening. Mother Jones dives into the phenomena (7 min). To dispel the onslaught of disinformation, the state of California launched a website to fight misinformation about California's fires (10 News, 4 min). GovTech looks at other steps states are taking and the limitations in combating disinformation (7 min). Related, Disinformation over deportations is spreading (CBS Minnesota, 3min). (disinformation)

The New York Times' Book Review delves into the concept of plagiarism as a plot in fiction, which brings forth the fine line between influence and appropriation (11 min). (copyright)

The Library of Congress provides a brief explainer of copyright in relation to public domain and showcases new entries (12 min). Internet Archive celebrated items entering the public domain in 2025, including The Skeleton Dance (1 min) and Popeye (7 min). A look beyond the public domain: A Few of Jessamyn West's Favorite Things highlights works that are without copyright restriction (Library Futures, 3 min). (copyright)

The US Supreme Court upheld a law banning TikTok, although an executive order delayed the ban (Austin-American Statesman, 7 min). The Verge reports (8 min) on the free speech and privacy implications of the ban, and Georgetown University's Free Speech Project has a comprehensive collection of articles and opinions on the topic. (first amendment, privacy)

NPR's 1A podcast looks at the movement to restrict minors' social media use (11 min). Marketplace examines on an executive order on online free speech could upend content moderation (10 min). (first amendment, access)

The Electronic Frontier Foundation offers some social media privacy tips (9 min). (privacy)

UK library releases Holocaust archive online; explore the digital archive (Vanguard News, 2 min). The Guardian reports on the return of banned books to shelves after the end of a dictatorship in Syria (5 min). The New York Times provides an interactive quiz that examines controversies with books that are considered classics (5 min). (access, censorship)

AI Spotlight

The Washington Post reports on how Al is getting in the way of consumers' access to accurate information and offer tips on finding relevant info (6 min). (information literacy)

Futurism's The Byte reports on more copyright issues with OpenAl (3 min). (copyright)

The Conversation calls out risks with the promises of Al Agents to improve your life (Conversation, 7 min). New research on the impact of Al in the workplace indicates it impacts critical thinking (Societies, 67 min). (privacy, information literacy)

Rights, Responsibilities & Reactions is a monthly roundup of Intellectual Freedom News compiled by the Multnomah County Library Intellectual Freedom Committee. We welcome suggestions at lib.ifc@multco.us.

Additional Resources

ALA Intellectual Freedom Blog: https://www.oif.ala.org A blog dedicated to intellectual freedom issues, and includes the Intellectual Freedom News –a weekly roundup of IF related articles

Oregon Library Association's Intellectual Freedom Toolkit (published February 8, 2022). A range of tools and resources relating to IF challenges and policies created by the OLA Intellectual Freedom Committee.