OVERVIEW

Collaborative Child Abuse Response (CCAR) is a statewide training for Oregon's multidisciplinary team members early in their career or switching roles, and fulfills statutorily mandated training requirements. CCAR focuses on the field response to child abuse and covers a range of topics that are essential knowledge for anyone engaging with families where child abuse is suspected. Participants will better understand how forensic interviewers are trained, best practices standards for field interviewing & gathering minimal facts, the basics of forensic interviewing, and how to work with children's advocacy centers (CACs).

PARTICIPANTS WILL:

- Understand the MDT process including the best practices standards, and how to work with children's advocacy centers (CACs).
- Discuss foundational topics of child development, memory and trauma, and the disclosure process.
- Apply best practices when receiving disclosures from children.
- Apply best practices in initial responder (minimal facts) interviews with children.
- Understand the life of a child abuse case, from disclosure through the judicial process.
